

SECTION VIII. PERIODICALS ON COMMUNIST STUDIES

Unfortunately, we had to cancel our annual article bibliography due to the immense workload it requires. Instead, we present you with a list of periodicals directly related to Communist studies, and a selection of thematic issues on the history of communism in general history journals from 2015-2016, as well as a list of selected articles sent in by INCS readers and correspondents. Our extensive list of general history journals where one can find regular contributions on communist history will be placed on the INCS homepage, in order to be updated regularly.

Selected Thematic Issues on Communist History in General History Journals, 2015-2017

Territoires Contemporains* (Dijon, France) no. 7, 2017: “Histoire documentaire du communisme”

The Centre Georges Chevrier, a research center of the University of Burgundy in Dijon, France, has recently issued a special issue of its journal Territoires Contemporains dedicated to the „Documentary History of Communism“.

This issue is the result of a seminar series held under the programme „ANR Paprik@2F“ (see the note in this issue). Under the editorship of Romain Ducoulombier and Jean Vigreux, the issue contains 17 contributions by French authors Rachel Mazuy, Joel Mouric, Ludovic Morel, Louis Poulhès, Florent Gouven, Violaine Challéat-Fonck, Christophe Bouvier, Vincent Chambarlhac, Marc Giovanetti, Anna Hihn, Raphaela Balu, Georges Vidal, Fabrice Grenard, Edouard Sill, Lucie Hébert and Alain Ruscio. Apart from the colonial politics of the PCF and the satellite organisations of the Comintern of the 1920s and 1930s, the main topic is French communism under the conditions of World War II since 1939, dealing intensively with anticommunism and the political repression by the French government and Vichy, the internment of the combatants in the Spanish Civil War and the French Résistance, particularly the maquis and the general implications for the military politics of the party.

See: <http://tristan.u-bourgogne.fr/CGC/prodscientifique/TC.html> for the table of contents and general information on the issue. Most of the contributions can be consulted online at http://tristan.u-bourgogne.fr/CGC/publications/Histoire\_documentaire\_communisme/Romain\_Ducoulombier\_Jean\_Vigreux.html.

L'Histoire* (Paris, France) no. 417, 2015/11: „Communistes, Pourquoi ils y ont cru?“

A special issue of the French popular history journal „L'Histoire“ (Paris) has been issued, dedicated to the history of international communism under the title „Communists, why did they believed in it?“ [« Communistes, Pourquoi ils y ont cru? »].

It contains (mainly biographical) contributions by Michel Winock (Il était une fois), Thierry Wolton (Juger sur la pratique), Sophie Coeuré (Pierre Pascal, le « catho » qui a rencontré Lénine), Judith Blanchon (Raymond Lefebvre, génération pacifiste), Jean Vigreux (Renaud Jean, le paysan rouge), Annette Wiewiorka (Manès Sperber, le juif universaliste et Maurice Thorez, l'apparatchik), Romain Ducoulombier (Aragon, le dandy stalinien), Isabelle Gouarné (Georges Friedmann, au nom du progrès), Denis Peschanski (Lise Ricol-London, la résistante), Pap Ndiaye (Aimé Césaire, le poète anticolonialiste).

The articles can be downloaded at 2,50€ each at <https://www.cairn.info/magazine-l-histoire-2015-11.htm#summary>.

Monde(s) (Rennes, France) no. 10, 2016/2: „Communisme transnational“

The global and transnational history journal Monde(s) (Rennes, France) has published a thematic issue on transnational aspects of communist history. Edited by Sabine Dullin and Brigitte Studer, it features articles (in French and English) by Gleb J. Albert, Jérémie Tamiatto, Kevin Morgan, Holger Weiss, David Mayer, Fredrik Petersson and Stephan Scheuzger, as well as a debate on Silvio Pons' "The Global Revolution" by Lisa Kirschenbaum, Étienne Forestier-Peyrat and Silvio Pons himself. The articles focus on international communism in the inter-war period, dealing with transnational connections, mutual influences and entanglements, and particularly the history of internationalism and anti-colonialism in the communist movement.

See <http://www.monde-s.com/programmation/anciens-numeros/archives-n10-communisme-transnational-novembre-2016> for the table of contents. The articles can be downloaded at 2,50€ each at <http://www.cairn.info/revue-mondes-2016-2.htm>.

Historical Research (London, UK) no. 247, 2017: The Centenary of the Russian Revolution. New Directions

The British historical journal Historical Research has published a special issue on the centenary of the Russian Revolutions of 1917. Guest edited by Matthew Rendle, it features 12 article contributions on the political, social and cultural history of the revolutionary period in Russia, from February 1917 to the early 1920s. The authors are Alistair Dickins, Lara Douds, Kitty Lam, Yuexin Rachel Lin, Matthew Rendle, Pavel Vasilyev, Aaron B. Retish, James Ryan, Christopher Gilley, Simon Pawley, Maria Cristina Galmarini-Kabala, and Anna Lively.

The articles are available in open access and can be downloaded at <http://onlinelibrary.wiley.com/doi/10.1111/hisr.v90.247/issuetoc>.

Zeithistorische Forschungen/Studies in Contemporary History (Postdam, Germany) 2015/2: Fotografie in Diktaturen/Photography in Dictatorships

The German contemporary history journal Zeithistorische Forschungen/Studies in Contemporary History has published a special issue on the history of photography in dictatorships, edited by Annette Vowinckel, Michael Wildt, Jan-Holger Kirsch. It features several contributions (some in German, some in English) on the history and role of photography in communist regimes.

The contributions are available in open access and can be downloaded at <http://www.zeithistorische-forschungen.de/2-2015>.

Contemporary European History 2016/4: Transnational Anti-Fascism: Agents, Networks, Circulations

Issue 4/2016 of the journal Contemporary European History is dedicated to the history of transnational antifascism. Edited by Hugo García, and featuring contributions by Kasper Braskén, Xosé Manoel Núñez Seixas, Claudia Baldoli, Tom Buchanan, Andrea Acle-Kreysing, Jens Späth and Nigel Copsey, it mostly focuses on the inter-war period. Transnational and transcontinental networks are covered, as well as the topics of anti-fascist exile, the influence of the USSR on antifascist movements, and the connection of antifascism and anti-imperialism.

The table of contents can be viewed at <https://www.cambridge.org/core/journals/contemporary-european-history/issue/transnational-antifascism-agents-networks-circulations/66C7BB6E0DA823AE3712837108CFCE10>.

Calls for Papers

Red Africa – a special issue of *Twentieth-Century Communism

In Red Africa. Affective Communities and the Cold War, Mark Nash writes: ‘although only a minority of independent African states chose formal affiliation with Marxism and communism, there is no doubt that together with the developing nationalist movements this was a major ideological force in African culture and politics’. Twentieth-Century Communism invites contributions to a special issue on the oft-neglected theme of Communism and Africa. The journal is open to contributions from the field of cultural studies as well as the social sciences. Subjects could include: the history of Communism in Africa before and after decolonisation, notably the experience of ‘tropical Marxism’; relations between Africa and the world Communist movement, in all its tense diversity (East/West, European/non-European, Moscow/Beijing/Belgrade/Pyongyang/Havana/East Berlin/Tirana/Paris, etc.); the experience of Communist Africans in exile; the place of Africa in Marxist theory.

Contributions of approximately 5000 words should be submitted by 1 October 2017 to Gavin Bowd, gpb@st-andrews.ac.uk. The issue will appear in the second half of 2018.
